Biography - David Richardson, VP of Technology Operations

David leads the DevOps and IT teams at Bombora. As VP of Technology Operations, he is responsible for Bombora's IT infrastructure, security efforts and software delivery pipeline. David drives innovation for the business not only in the U.S. but across the globe.

For over 20 years, David has been helping businesses wrangle their technology. Before Bombora, he was the Director of Technology Operations at Madison Logic. There, David grew their IT systems from a single server to a global operation and managed their tech team. Before that, he held positions as Lead Technologist at IndustryBrains and as CTO for the Slamdance Film Festival.

David is an educator by nature and is passionate about how technology and society intersect. He launched a video game design course at Stanford's Digital Media Academy, and created a high school Computational Physics curriculum. He also enjoys playing the piano and river kayaking.

David holds a B.Sc in Symbolic Systems from Stanford University.
